About This Program

The CirclePoint™ Bullying Prevention Program is a research-based multi-mechanism community empowerment program that educates all members of a school or educational community—administrators, teachers, support staff, parents, and students—on bullying and empowers them with recommended actions, strategies, and processes to prevent, reduce, and resolve bullying problems. The program seeks to effect change at the individual level to stop harmful aggression and repair the damage caused by bullying, at the peer group level to make bullying less accepted, and at the community level to create an empowered membership that can work cooperatively to provide a safer, more enjoyable, and more productive environment for students.

About This Guide

This guide serves two purposes. First, it serves as the CirclePoint Bullying Prevention Program implementation and execution guide. The topics covered include detailed explanations of each program element, the materials required, and an example implementation plan.

The second purpose of this guide is to provide the educational component for teachers, administrators, school support staff, and other school personnel on bullying, bystander intervention, target empowerment techniques, teacher classroom strategies, and supporting bullied students.
